

The Agile Consortium Belgium

The Agile Consortium Belgium ('ACB') is a non-commercial, non-profit organization that wants to promote and evangelize "Agile" methods and principles, from software development up to the enterprise level. The consortium was established in 2009, as an (independently operating) subsidiary of the Agile Consortium Benelux.

The ACB will be specifically targeting its efforts and communication at a CxO-audience, i.e. the management levels of Belgian industry. Means to do so will be knowledge gathering and distribution (e.g. via white papers and seminars), building networks, documenting proven strategies and experiences, etc.

As Capgemini is a (founding) company member of the Consortium, all Capgemini staff can enjoy membership advantages. This includes e.g. the free attending of "Inner Circle" meetings and presentations. These are regular presentations of top class speakers on Agile-related topics.

Under sponsorship of Michel Kennis, Bart Reyserhove and Gunther Verheyen represent Capgemini in the Board of the ACB. Feel free to contact them if you have any questions, or check out the website at www.agileconsortium.be or the Google group at <http://groups.google.com/group/agileconsortiumbelgium>.
